

Homgaroo The biased story of the regrettable disappearance of homo sapiens

In the summary of Adam Palla

Main genre: Sci-fi novel

“Subgenres”: History – Family – Love - Real science – Humor – Hope in the future

Keywords and key-numbers:

140 years. 5 cosmic and self-caused disasters, 3 solutions, 2 opened questions. 24 family members. 5 nations. 7 generations. 6 greatest scientists of the world. Hundreds of space-shift-astronauts. 0 returnees. 6 deep loves. 1 strong wrath. 2 unbelievable scientific results, violating the boundaries of nature. 2 unexpected revenges of nature. 1 unlikely altered world. 2 kinds of sapiens.

Locations:

Hungarian Great Plain, backwaters of river Tisza, wetlands, Acacia homestead on the Kunisland. Budapest. Greenland. Sweden. The whole Earth. And an impossible space-part beyond our Universe.

Abstract

2074, summer, Acacia. It looks, like our normal world. But it is not. Step by step, it becomes clear which changes have been caused by the great disasters of recent decades: The very strange viral infection from deep space; the rapid development of a vaccine that has uncontrollably altered the genetics of humanity; the disappearance of ancient newborns, the slow extinction of homo sapiens; the new dangerous abilities of the raised “homgaroo” sapiens; the two unexpected menaces from the cosmos: the “anomalies” and the “strange” areas; the very difficult scientific and technological development of the single possible escape-solution from the Earth: the space-shifting, invented by the protagonist physicist, Adam Palla – which is causing a bigger unanticipated problem that needs to be solved again.

If only one sentence...

Whatever catastrophe happens, people will always stand up again if they have the right knowledge in their brains and deep love in their hearts.
